

About

Carla is known for no-nonsense, direct, practical style. She asks the tough questions to incite awareness, uncover root causes and inspire change. She leads with integrity and curiosity and encourages others to do the same.

Over the past 20+ years, Carla has developed and led teams in people-focused disciplines, across a variety of industries and stages including Tesla, Apple, Salesforce, UnitedHealth Group, Charles Schwab as well as several start-ups. She has developed and implemented programs focused on leadership, coaching, as well as specific competency training. Carla has coached C-Suite thru frontline leaders. She doesn't shy away from tough problems.

As a consultant, Carla's work centers on building effective teams that deliver results, designing organizations structures that work, leading and navigating change effectively, and helping leaders become more successful. She is a skilled facilitator that leverages her improv training to create team events that are memorable and impactful. She is passionate about helping individuals and teams translate their ideas into strategy.
